Mécanique & Industries

Mechanics & Industry

Mechanics & Industry coordinates and disseminates new scientific and technical contributions in the mechanical domain in relation to industrial activities. This international journal acts as an interface between academic and industrial research.

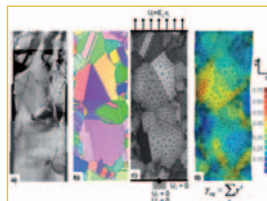

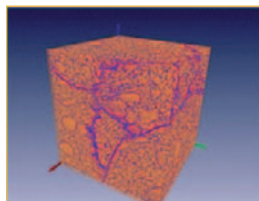

An international readership

Mechanics & Industry is read in over 140 countries around the world. Your article will reach researchers on every continent, thus giving it wide visibility and impact on the international scientific community, reaching technicians, engineers, executives, researchers, teachers, who are working in industrial companies as managers or in R&D departments, technical centres, laboratories, universities, technical and engineering schools.

In order to maintain high quality scientific papers with emphasis on industrial applications, a thorough review process is overseen by our Editorial Board who selects, world-wide, editors and referees specializing in areas of research corresponding to submitted articles. This approach ensures highly qualified and timely reviews that benefit both the authors and the publication process. Articles or reviews must have the highest relevance to today's various aspects of applied mechanics. Articles that feature industrial applications are welcomed as well.

Aims & scope

All articles published in Mechanics & Industry offer you a wide multidisciplinary contents extending from fluid mechanics, heat and mass transfers to various processes of manufacturing and shaping. Articles correspond to a requirement of indisputable scientific quality, in narrow connection with industrial applications. A calendar of the congresses and events in the field of mechanics, technical articles on "Technology in mechanics" and information on AFM and the other learned societies (French or foreign) are also at your disposal.
