

FLOATING STRUCTURES FOR STABLE ENERGY SUPPLY

Maeda, Professor Hisaaki

Department of Oceanic Architecture and Engineering

Nihon University

3-17-25 Yagumo, Meguroku, Tokyo 152-0023, Japan

maedah@iis.u-tokyo.ac.jp

Abstract: Floating structures includes those not only for oil & gas but also for methane hydrate, nuclear power station, ocean energy as renewable energy, and so on. A very large floating structure is also mentioned which may be utilized as a floating airport. The concept of the life cycle engineering is introduced, which requires rational maintenance, inspection and repair.